COGNAC

The region authorised to produce cognac is divided into six zones, including five crus broadly covering the department of Charente-Maritime, a large part of the department of Charente and a few areas in Deux-Sèvres and the Dordogne. The six zones are: Grande Champagne, Petite Champagne, Borderies, Fins Bois, Bon Bois and finally Bois Ordinaire. A blend of Grande and Petite Champagne Cognacs, with at least half coming from Grande Champagne, is known as Fine Champagne.

JARNAC - GRANDE CHAMPAGNE

In 1858, Amédée-Edouard DOR, scion of an old Cognac family, embarked upon the unusual and painstaking task that was to occupy the whole of his life. His passion was for Cognacs of noble distinction. With dogged determination, he hunted, selected and collected the finest Cognacs using Columbard, Ugni Blanc, and Folle Blanche

PAUL BEAU
SEGZONAC - GRANDE CHAMPAGNE

The Beau family is one of the oldest Bouilleurs de Cru – artisanal Cognac distillers - in Segonzac, the heart of Cognac’s first growth, known as the Grande Champagne region. Samuel Beau started distilling in 1895, bottling and selling part of his Cognacs under his own name, which at that time was quite unusual. A majority of the vineyard is planted with the Ugni Blanc grape. On a tiny fraction Colombard is grown.

COURVOISIER
JARNAC - GRANDE CHAMPAGNE

In 1828, Felix Courvoisier and Jules Gallois wanted to improve the quality of Cognac, moving their business to the heart of the Cognac region in the town of Jarnac. After Felix's passing in 1866, his nephews, the Curlier brothers, took over the management of the distillery. By 1909, the business was sold to the Simon family from England. Located ten minutes from the town of Cognac, the main Courvoisier business operations still operate from the Château on the banks of the Charente river which was established in the 1870s.

NAVARRE
GONDEVILLE - GRANDE CHAMPAGNE

Jacky Navarre is one of the last purists among the artisan Cognac distillers. The 4th generation of cognac makers in his family, located in Gondeville since 1811. He takes care of his small Grande Champagne estate with a very basic rule, "Let nature do (most of) the work." Jacky makes a point to harvest by hand - a technique long ago forgotten by most in the Cognac area, as it is not quite compatible with the ever expanding race for who will put out the most branded cases on the market.

TESSERON
BONNEUIL - GRANDE CHAMPAGNE

The history of the Tesson family's involvement in wine and spirits can be accurately traced back to the 19th century, when Abel Tesson bought a cognac estate in Châteauneuf-sur-Charente, later to be named Domaine Tesson. His father had been a cognac producer as well, so the know-how ran in the family. He soon began a private collection of rare and priceless cognacs and finally founded his own cognac house in 1905, Cognac Tesson.

LEOPOLD GOURMEL

SEGZONAC - GRANDE CHAMPAGNE

In 1972 Pierre Voisin and Olivier Blanc co-founded the Cognac house Léopold Gourmel. They named it after Pierre Voisin's grandfather Léopold Gourmel, because both of them cherished his love for nature, whether it was when tending his vineyards, working the garden or fishing in the Atlantic ocean on the shores of his native island Ile de Ré. Léopold Gourmel's respect towards the environment inspired them to create a Cognac house that was entirely embracing the methods of producing in eco-friendly ways.

HENNESSY
SEGZONAC - GRANDE CHAMPAGNE

Hennessy has always been at the top of international trade, with an establishment of the first agency in London in 1840 and the first delivery of bottles to Japan in 1868. In 1872 Hennessy reaches China. In 1992, to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the first shipment of Cognac to Asia, Hennessy chartered an old-fashioned sailing ship and called it "Spirit of Hennessy".

MARTELL
SEGZONAC - GRANDE CHAMPAGNE

When Jean Martell, the founder of the Cognac house, died in 1753, Jattebourse, the first site of Martell production had already become the center of an aspiring business and a prosperous future. Jean's two sons Jean and Frédéric would continue what their father had begun. In the later half of the century, they would be exporting 200,000 liters of Cognac to Britain.

HINE

SEGZONAC - GRANDE CHAMPAGNE

As a young man, Thomas Hine left his native Dorset in England to make a life in France. Rumours have it that his family was involved in smuggling spirits between France and Britain. Thomas Hine was briefly imprisoned during the height of the French Revolution, however, not as a smuggler but as a suspected British spy. He then married a local woman and soon became the heir to her father's Cognac business in Jarnac.

SEGZONAC - GRANDE CHAMPAGNE

Whilst Cognac Pierre Ferrand is a relatively new concept, only being inaugurated in 1989, the methods used are strictly traditional and date back over the centuries. ARMAGNAC

ARMAGNAC

Armagnac is a distinctive kind of brandy produced in the Armagnac region in Gascony, southwest France. It is distilled from wine usually made from a blend of grapes including Baco 22A, Colombard, Folle blanche and Ugni blanc, traditionally using column stills rather than the pot stills used in the production of Cognac. The resulting spirit is then aged in oak barrels before release.

CHARTREUSE

Chartreuse is a French liqueur made by the Carthusian Monks since 1737 according to the instructions set out in the secret manuscript given to them by François Annibal d'Éstrées in 1605. It is composed of distilled alcohol aged with 130 herbs, plants and flowers. The liqueur is named after the Monks' Grande Chartreuse monastery, located in the Chartreuse Mountains in the general region of Grenoble in France. The liqueur is produced in their distillery in the nearby town of Voiron (Isère).

CHARTREUSE

With hundreds of years of tradition and history, Chartreuse comes from a breathtaking, remote mountain monastery high in the French Alps. Produced as an act of devotion by the Carthusian order of monks, it's now consumed in a similar act of devotion by many.
