

RN74 SEATTLE

Taking its name from the highway, Route Nationale 74, which runs directly through the Burgundy region of France, RN74 is a wine-centric French inspired restaurant by Michael Mina.

RN74's wine program, under the direction of Wine Director Jeff Lindsay-Thorsen, focuses heavily on the greatest producers and regions of Burgundy. However, the well-balanced list also showcases international and domestic selections. RN74 has been awarded Wine Spectator's highest honor, the "Grand Award" every year it has been eligible starting in 2010 and was named one of America's 100 Best Wine Restaurants of 2016 by Wine Enthusiast Magazine.

RN74 cuisine aims to be a perfect complement to the wines – creative, modern, but simple interpretations of regional French cuisine punctuated with seasonal, fresh ingredients and bold flavors.

ABOUT

SHAWN APPLIN

Shawn's fascination with food and cooking was harnessed at a young age where he learned to cook at the knees of his grandmother during Sunday family dinners in Elmira, New York. His grandmother made everything from scratch including chicken and dumplings, roast pork over potatoes, and chocolate pudding, which laid the groundwork for Shawn's culinary intrigue. He quickly realized that the best part of his day was being in the kitchen.

After graduating from the Culinary Institute of America Hyde Park, Shawn headed out west to Seattle to explore a burgeoning food city. He worked his way through kitchens, learning from James Beard Award-winning chef Christine Keff at Flying Fish and Fandango.

After spending several years in Seattle, Shawn was ready for a new challenge and a bigger city, setting foot in San Francisco. It was his time in San Francisco that helped set the bar for high culinary standards and allowed him to refine his cooking skills, working at several prestigious restaurants including Fog City Diner, Scalas Bistro, Azie and more.

Shawn soon realized that his heart was in Seattle and returned to the Pacific Northwest, initially with McCaw Hall. Most recently, Shawn was the Executive Chef at Sazerac in Hotel Monaco, which he helped transform into the new Outlier Restaurant with his culinary direction.

Throughout his career, Shawn has enjoyed creating relationships with local purveyors and small farms, seeking the highest-quality ingredients for his guests. He gets great satisfaction from cooking with the seasons, including braising and slow roasting in the winter, and creating lighter fare in the summer, such as crudo and mussels in white wine.

Shawn joined RN74 Seattle in December 2018, honing classic French techniques and recipes, and working under the direction of one of his culinary inspirations, Michael Mina.
